Guidelines for Submitting Articles to The Journal of Practical Nursing

1. All articles should focus on the physical and emotional needs of patients and the licensed practical/vocational nurse's responsibility in patient care.
2. Clinical articles should include a nursing care plan or a section on specific nursing considerations.
3. Articles should be 500 to 2,500 words long and submitted in electronic format of Word, Adobe Pagemaker, or Simple Text.
4. Photographs, drawings, and/or charts illustrating material in the article are welcome.
5. References used in articles should be included in the electronic manuscript.
6. Biographical data of the author(s) should be submitted with each article.
7. Since The Journal of Practical Nursing is a copyrighted periodical, please do not submit articles that have appeared in other publications or articles you are submitting simultaneously to other publications.
8. All articles will be reviewed for relevancy and clinical accuracy by the editor, by editorial consultants and by a clinical consultant. The final decision will be made at an Editorial Committee meeting, and author(s) will be notified of the decision within six to eight weeks after receipt of the article.

Please note -- The Journal of Practical Nursing, as a professional publication, does not ordinarily pay for articles accepted.

Please send submissions and terms of acceptance forms to:

The Journal of Practical Nursing Terms of Acceptance for Submitted Works

1. The author grants The Journal of Practical Nursing the right to edit, abridge, condense, and publish the article. The author also grants JPN the right to determine the title, headings, and subheadings for the article, as well as the captions, illustrations, and supplementary material, if any, to accompany the article.
2. Prior to publication, the edited article may be sent to the author for approval if there have been substantial editorial revisions to the original manuscript and if the schedule permits. It will be sent to the address listed by the author at the bottom of this page. It is the author's responsibility to inform JPN if his or her address on the form below changes.
3. If the author would like any revisions to the edited manuscripts, he or she must return the edited manuscript with clearly written revisions to The Journal of Practical Nursing within 14 days of the date we mailed the article. These revisions by the author are advisory and the editor is not required to make the suggested changes. If the edited manuscript is not returned within the 14-day period, JPN will assume the author's approval.
4. Copyright of the published article is owned by the National Association for Practical Nurse Education and Service, Inc. If the author wishes to retain complete or specific rights to the article, this should be arranged prior to publication.
5. The author agrees that the article has not been accepted by any other nursing magazine and that he/she will not submit this article or a very similar article to any other magazine for at least one year after publication. Furthermore, the author attests that this is an original work and has not been published elsewhere under a different byline.
6. Nothing in this agreement shall constitute a guarantee that the author's article will in fact be published in The Journal of Practical Nursing. Only a separate, official written communication for the editor can establish definite publishing agreements.
7. As a professional journal published by a nonprofit association, the Journal of Practical Nursing usually does not pay for articles published. If an author wishes to be considered for payment, he/she should inquire prior to publication, and should not sign this form.
